

The week before half term the whole school spent the week celebrating the fabulous achievements of The Queen and her 70 year reign. We spent time in worship and in class learning more about the Queen, her life and her family.

We also used it as an opportunity to be creative. All the classes studied portraits of The Queen at different stages in her life and we then created our own portraits of her. Some classes chose abstract styles, some thought about the different hats she wears and others thought about different styles and materials to create their pictures.

Many of the children also created poems which celebrated the life of The Queen and looked forward to the Jubilee celebrations.

Each class also created different styles of bunting to hang up around school. We were really proud of the art work we created and were pleased it was on display in the village and that we could share it with the community during the Jubilee weekend.

At the end of the week we had our own garden party in school. All the children dressed in party clothes, fit for a royal occasion, or in red, white and blue. We invited parents to come along and bring a picnic and we all ate together on the school field. After all the restrictions of the last few years, we loved being able to share this event with our families. While we ate, Mr Creasy played a variety of different songs for us to listen to and once we had finished our picnics, there was special Jubilee cake for us to enjoy.

We played lots of different games- golf, skittles, hoola hoops, throwing games and skipping ropes. There was even hook a duck and a coconut shy! All around school there were different facts about The Queen which we had to go and find and put on our quiz sheets.

It was a great way to celebrate the Jubilee and share what we do in school with the community.
